THAT some of our old judges cannot follow an argument for more than two hours is the complaint of some lawyers. On behalf of the ancient judges it is only fair to say that it is not their own argument which they cannot follow.

Some provinces for the same reason are asking the federal government to assume the whole burden, but it, too, is financially embarrassed, and drastic reduction in relief costs is indicated.

Royal Councillors Meet

Arrangements Made For Grasshopper Poison Station at Vulcan

All members of the council of the Municipal District of Royal were present at the May meeting held at the municipal offices on Saturday last. This meeting was postponed from May 13th, the regular date, due to farm activities.

Minutes of the April meeting were read by secretary-treasurer, A. J. Flood and were approved by the council.

A number of accounts were read and passed for payment on approval of the council.

Main item of business for the meeting was the discussion and arranging of a grasshopper poison mixing station for the district in Vulcan. The station will be situated in the municipal rink and a full supply of the bait mixture will be ready when the situation requires the spreading over of the affected areas.

Routine business and discussion of road work finished the session. The next regular meeting will be held on June 9th.

Judge Reserves Judgment In McPherson Divorce Case

Trial Instituted by Mrs. Cora McPherson Against Hon. O. L. McPherson Finished

Following the hearing of evidence which occupied days, Mr. Justice Ford of Edmonton, has reserved judgment in the matter of the McPherson divorce case. Mrs. Cora McPherson divorced wife of the Minister of Public Works, sued for annulment of the divorce on the ground of collusion. Hon. O. L. McPherson secured his divorce in 1931, in an undefended action. After the lapse of more than a year, at the end of which Mr. McPherson re-married, the divorced wife instituted proceedings claiming that the divorce was secured by collusion, and asking that it be annulled.

Mr. Justice Ford's statement at the conclusion of the case, in which he states that he is reserving judgment, is as follows:

"The consequences of a judgment, either for the plaintiff or for the defendant, will be of such a serious nature that if there ever is any difference between the consideration which a judge should give to cases which come before him, this is one in which the greatest care should be taken, because in delivering judgment all consequences, however serious to anyone must be disregarded."

"I desire, however, to say that at the present time there appears to me such room for doubt as to where the real truth of the whole matter lies, and there are such difficulties as to the legal questions involved, that the ends of justice may be better served by suggesting that counsel for the parties might consider whether there is not some way out short of a judgment on the main issues, either for the plaintiff or the defendant."

The evidence as presented before a crowded courtroom in Edmonton, has subjected Hon. O. L. McPherson to humiliation and distress. Incidents, trivial and irrelevant, and in many instances innocent, have been probed and distorted under the merciless efforts of the legal examiners. It has been the most widely publicized case ever heard in the province, the publicity and sensational attendance at the hearing, creating an unhappy precedent.

Whatever the judgment of Justice Ford may be, it is evident that it will be given only after very serious consideration.

Hon. O. L. McPherson's friends—and there are many of them—are firm in their belief that he has been the victim of a persecution which has not been justified by the evidence produced. They are quite convinced that he sought divorce only after the gravest provocation and seeing no hope of maintaining the integrity of his family life. They refuse to believe there was collusion. Moreover, the withdrawal of allowance from his divorced wife which, it is alleged, occurred after she had instituted proceedings against him, is regarded as a normal, though possibly unpolitic reaction.

Whatever the result of the action may be, it can have benefitted nobody, bringing only suffering and unhappiness, not only to those involved but also to innocent parties. If it was promoted to bring about the complete ruin of a minister of the government, it is still a question whether or not it has been successful.

Where Mr. McPherson is most thoroughly known, there may be found a strong confidence in his character and conduct. And many who do not know him are inclined to ignore the recent court proceedings, and to judge him on the basis of the work he has done as Minister of Public Works. He has given the province a good administration.

Local Vocalist Wins Musical Festival Prize

Wm. Walker Wins Second Place in Baritone Solo Class

Success came to Wm. Walker as a competitor in the baritone solo class at the annual Musical Festival held in Calgary last week when he won second place with 86 marks, one less than given to the first place winner. The competition was for vocalists under the age of 22 years. Press reports in the Alberta dailies, all give praise to this young Vulcan man and all Vulcan is happy to learn of a success achieved.

Vulcan Softball Team Play Three Contests

Brant, Ensign and Mossleigh Play Locals Over Week End

Vulcan's softball nine played three games at home on Sunday to fair sized galleries of fans. Brant, Mossleigh and Ensign were the visitors and opponents. The locals won, lost and tied in the strenuous day's play. The first game was played with Brant, the visitors taking the long end of a 22-11 score. In the second game the locals proved too much for the Mossleigh squad, the final score being 26-12. The last game of the day, played with Ensign, ended in a deadlock score of 11-11.

Although the Vulcan team had only planned to play the game with Brant, the coming of the other visitors being unknown to the locals, arrangements were made on their arrival for both to play, but both wanted a chance to try the strength of the Vulcans with the above results.

The Vulcan softball team have this week made purchase of natty green sweaters with caps of contrasting color. This will give the team a pleasing appearance when it appears on the field this season in competition in the Southern Softball League.

CHARLES CLARK, Proprietor

Thursday, June 1, 1933

SIR JOSIAH STAMP SPEAKS

The address given to the graduates of Toronto University by Sir Josiah Stamp last Thursday evening, proved the distinguished gentleman a master of pungent phrases as well as of economics.

Speaking of the academic responsibility in preparing young people to meet the immediate future, he said: "No one can face the present situation adequately without the ability to think." In his opinion sustained, successful recovery is mainly an intellectual problem, calling for trained mentalities.

Speaking of the three chief problems concerned in quick recovery he mentioned the balance which must be arrived at, between individual liberty and social direction. At present we are engaged in "putting large patches of social regulation on the garments of personal liberty. At the same time Russia is running gussets in the strait jacket of communism." The second problem of recovery lies in submitting national sovereignty to the larger conditions of international welfare, and the third, of course is the monetary problem.

Amongst the memorable sentences which were appreciated by listeners over the radio, as well as by his visible audience, were these: "We can never reach the golden age of living in the stone age of thought."

"Education is supposed by some to be the inculcation of the incomprehensible into the ignorant by the incompetent." "One person with a belief is equal to 99 who have only interests." "There must be progress but fidgeting is not progress. There is such a thing as motion on hinges, rather than forward." "We must be rid of the delusion that a stand pat attitude is evidence of careful judgment."

The speaker laid particular emphasis on the training in leisure which must take a more important place in the scheme of life. Education of the individual was formerly for the purpose of developing a better citizen, a more competent worker, a more intelligent voter. Nowadays there must be added "and a wiser loiterer." It is impossible that all the time of society can be taken up in making ever new commodities, we must also have time to enjoy them. Leisure is just as real in satisfying human needs as work, and when the equilibrium between individual production and consumption is arrived at, there will be a growing leisure which must be used intelligently.

Sir Josiah's concluding sentence was: "We are engaged today in the remarkable administration of the unforeseen."

ALBERTA AT WORLD FAIR

The Alberta exhibit which is now being prepared at the World's Grain Conference in Regina is necessarily of interest to all citizens of this province. The Conference will open in July and will draw to Regina representatives from the nations of the world.

Alberta, it is said, is building her "personality" in the exhibit, round scenic attractions. A space 120 feet in size has been allotted for the purpose of putting over the province. An exhibit in the centre 40 feet will feature the tourist attractions of the province. A 16-foot cabinet into which will be built two mountain scenes with special lighting effects will be the main unit. In the central panel a transparency, operated by an automatic electrical appliance, will present a realistic impression of one of Alberta's beautiful waterfalls. In this section too an elaborate, illuminated map will indicate the highway routes to many tourists' summer resorts, game areas and fishing grounds.

On one side of this striking presentation will be demonstrated the coal resources of the province, and on the other a glimpse of agricultural activities. All the varied products of farm and ranches will be presented as effectively as may be in the limited space. A field of standing wheat will be a part of this arrangement.

Beautiful pictures, photographs, and so on will be used also to enhance the charm of the exhibit, and draw the eye of strangers from the four corners of the world.

The Alberta Motor Association and the government have arranged an attractive tourist booklet available to all interested, at the Conference.

REDISTRIBUTION

Redistribution of federal ridings of Canada occurs every ten years following the decennial census. Any developments or variations in population are taken care of by a redistribution of seats based on the fixed Quebec representation of 65 members.

It is rarely that a redistribution has been made without the opposition regarding it as a "gerry mander" or juggling, on the part of the existing government to improve its strength. No matter how carefully a redistribution might be effected, it is bound, through its change of boundaries to work out to the disadvantage of certain members and the advantage of others. On the one hand it is difficult to conceive of a government so altruistic that it would not try to prevent any suffering on the part of faithful members. And on the other hand opposing parties have always been over-quick to centre on possible unfairnesses.

In the present redistribution which has been causing much strife, Mr. Garland appears to be one of the most unfortunate. Not so long ago, he transferred his residence to Gleichen in order that he would be accessibly situated in his riding of Bow River. The ruling of the committee however, has changed the Bow River boundaries entirely, removing Gleichen which is his home, from the riding. Part is absorbed in the Medicine Hat electoral district, part goes to Macleod and a section of East Calgary is included in Bow River. He will have practically a new constituency.

The Macleod federal riding suffers no change which affects this immediate district. All the area north of Aldersyde however, including Turner Valley becomes a part of East Calgary riding with Dr. Stanley as representative.

Mr. Coote's area is then extended eastward, embracing quite a portion of the old Bow River. The identical interests of the people in Macleod riding are not changed and our representative will have little difficulty in recommending himself and his principles to his new electorate.

What develops in Miss McPhail's riding of South East Grey will be watched with interest. Miss McPhail is too valuable and colorful a member of the House of Commons to be eliminated, quite regardless of party beliefs. She is needed.

A suggestion that might be followed to prevent the misunderstanding of redistribution, has been made by the Lethbridge Herald and is that a committee of Judges assisted by statisticians and geographers, all independent of government and party, could more wisely undertake the re-assembling of boundaries. That should eliminate a very fertile source of bitterness between the ins and the outs.

QUESTION OF TITLES

There are indications that the legislation of 1919 asking that the King bestow no further titles in Canada, may be discarded and that titles may be revived. Quite a number of Canadians in Montreal and other parts of the East favor the revival of these birthday favors.

The majority of Westerners are rather indifferent or actively opposed to the revival of titles. They see in them something that is no doubt quite in keeping with society of older countries, but unnecessary and slightly ridiculous in this new and pioneer land. The average Westerner has a deaf ear and a blind eye for title and degree. He never can remember the niceties of rank. He looks a man over, and if the object of his interest measures up as an able, honorable person, no appendages of title will add one whit of respect.

It is possible that Canada has had an unfortunate experience in the bestowing of titles. They have not always gone to citizens who have commanded the respect of their fellowman, or who have advanced the welfare of fellow citizens in any degree. There are many men in Canada who rank with kings so far as their service to the world is concerned. As Sir Josiah Stamp said recently "One single brain may raise the standard of life for millions and in Canada you have had many of these, within the last few years." But are any of them titled, or would they refuse such an honor, as being out of place, even though conferred by their King?

In thinking of the fine men who have served humanity well, would it enhance our regard if their names were prefixed with "Sir"? To tell the truth, it would in the minds of some, detract a little from the regard, exposing them as being susceptible to artificial standards. This may be in its way as false an attitude as that of those who adore titles. But these are the two extremes of opinion in Canada. In fact the Red Deer Advocate feels so strongly that it considers the prevalent granting of honorary University degrees unfavorably. It says: "It would be interesting if governments and colleges would publish a list of the men and women who have refused these titles, and preferred to hold their ground with the common run of people, even if their capacity and service is outstanding."

However, it is a likelihood that titles will again enter Canadian life, bringing great satisfaction to those who accept them, and unhappiness to those who want them and can't get them.

A LIFE OF FAITH

The more one sees of farming in this country the more he has to admire the men and women who are engaged in the industry. They surely live a life of faith. With the certainty that the price they will receive for their products will not pay the costs incurred, they go cheerfully about their work. They take all manner of risks—drought, hail, grasshoppers, rust, soil depletion; they sell eggs, butter and other products at a low price—yet they remain optimistic, do their best to keep churches and schools open and pay their debts in kind when they have the opportunity. These are the people who deserve encouragement. Fortunately the conviction is growing that the welfare of all Canada depends upon the prosperity of the farmers.—St. Mary's (Ont.) Journal-Argus.

SEARCH FOR HEAVEN

Once upon a time, runs an old story, a number of Eskimos set out from the country which had been their ancestral home to look for heaven. For some reason not stated, they turned their faces southward and after journeying many moons and surveying the country carefully they returned northward again. To their enquiring friends they announced sadly that heaven certainly did not lie in that direction. In the South they had found a hopeless and barren country, no seals for food, no whales for blubber, no polar bears to provide skins for clothing, no snow or ice to provide walls for their comfortable houses, no oil for their lamps, no bone for their weapons; only dreary forests and blistering plains and animals they could never capture by any possible contrivance. No, wherever heaven was, it certainly was not in the South.

By the side of this might be set another tale of an Indian tribe which also longed for heaven and sent an exploring party northward to seek for it. And the party travelled many moons and returned in disappointment. Heaven, the explorers reported, was not in the North. There they found a country bare of antelope and buffalo. There was no food to be had, no skins for their tepees or moccasins, no wood for their fires, no grass for their horses. Only moss and snow and blocks of ice and lakes of bitter water with animals they could not reach or kill; only interminable days when the insects were a torment and nights without end when the cold gnawed like hunger. No, wherever, it might be, heaven was not in the North.

The search for a way out of the prevailing depression is like the aborigines' search for heaven. So much depends on one's preconceptions and prejudices and wants. So much depends on what one is looking for. Perhaps, if we would only look in the right direction, the condition we know as prosperity is not so very far away after all. All the elements of it are very likely with us, if we only knew how to turn them to account.—Vancouver Province.

When Alberta settles down and decides to exercise her attractions, she cannot be resisted. There has never been a year in which pleasant weather has been so greatly appreciated, and everyone has revelled in the wonderful balmy air and fine "growing" weather of the past two weeks. Trees have burst into full leaf almost over night, and growth of plants and gardens, not to mention the grain fields, has never been more rapid.

DR G DICKSON PRES. UN. CHURCH

Note of High Hope Sounded at Conference, Resolution on War

Dr. G. A. Dickson, newly elected president of the Alberta Conference held in Calgary last week, presided over a great gathering of clergymen and delegates.

Many features of interest to laymen were discussed.

M. and M. Fund $95,000

The Missionary and Maintenance committee showed that $64,475 had been contributed for the world-wide work of the church. An objective of $95,000 has been set for this year.

Religious Education

A report of intense interest was submitted by Rev. H. S. MacDonald on Religious Education. There were reported 618 Sunday schools, 4,518 teachers and officers, 44,311 scholars, with an average attendance of 25,378. Special attention was called to the organization during the year of the Provincial Young People's Council and in the sum total of mid-week organizations. During the coming year special attention is to be paid to leadership training through local schools and special winter training schools at convenient centres.

Against War

A real debate was waged on a resolution dealing with "Peace and War." The resolution declared "that since international warfare is becoming more and more clearly recognized as one of the greatest evils of human life, therefore this Alberta Conference hereby declares its unalterable opposition to war as a means of settling disputes between nations, and calls upon the membership of our church to declare, individually and severally, their personal determination not to take up arms to destroy or wound their fellow men in war." When put to a vote the resolution carried by a large majority.

LAND SETTLEMENT B'D TURNER VALLEY

E. L. Gray, Field Crops Commissioner of Alberta, accompanied by Colin Groff, of the Provincial publicity department passed through High River on Thursday last. They had been touring the southern part of the province in connection with the control of the impending grasshopper outbreak, and were enroute to Turner Valley to attend a sitting of the Land Settlement Board. This meeting was to consider the eligibility of a large number of Turner Valley families, who are desirous of participating in the Land Settlement program. Only those with suitable land to go to, can be considered in this scheme. S. H. Gandeir of Edmonton, presided over the sitting, and others on the board included E. S. Martin from the C.N.R. department of Colonization, and J. S. Duncan of the Soldier Settlement Board.

Mr. Gray, speaking of the possible grasshopper outbreak, impressed that panic in connection is both undesirable and unnecessary. Every preliminary arrangement has been made by the government, and the threatened area is well organized. Headquarters of the local district is Vulcan, where P. D. Huxley is stationed.

The earliest poisoning will not be necessary till this week, about Tuesday. Farmers are urged to keep on the alert, but not to be too seriously alarmed.

WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

Fragments From Agenda Indicate Plan of Restoration of World Trade

Amongst the phases of financial and economic situations to be studied at the World Conference are:

1. "In the field of monetary and credit policy, the objective must be the restoration of an effective international monetary standard to which the countries which have abandoned the gold standard can wisely adhere."

2. "The unprecedented fall of commodity prices in recent years has caused a growing disequilibrium between costs and prices, has immensely increased the real burden of all debts and fixed charges, has made business more and more unprofitable, and has resulted in a continuous and disastrous increase of unemployment throughout the world. One of the methods that should be considered is the continuation and development, where monetary conditions permit, of a general policy of easy money designed to promote a healthy expansion of business."

3. "The restoration of free exchanges is so essential to the recovery of financial confidence and to the resumption of the normal flow of international credit that the Governments should consider whether they cannot expedite the process."

4. "Finally, there must be greater freedom of international trade. It has already been pointed out that one of the most significant features of the present crisis is the fall which has taken place, not only in the value but in the quantum of world trade. This fall has been partly caused, and has certainly been intensified, by the growing network of restrictions which have been imposed on trade during recent years. All seek to sell but not to buy. Such a policy must inevitably lead to an increasing paralysis of international trade. Governments should set themselves to re-establish the normal interchange of commodities."

It is not with a customs truce, however that the agenda is chiefly concerned, but rather with out-right tariff reduction. Reductions of tariffs may be effected:

- (a) By a general agreement of the Conference;
- (b) By a collective agreement of a group of Governments;
- (c) By bilateral negotiations;
- (d) By autonomous action on the part of Governments individually.

HELPING SORES ON WORKING HORSE

A type of sore on horses that is persistent is caused by flies containing the larvae of stomach worms feeding on small wounds or abrasions on the skin. The larvae escape from the mouth of the fly and live in the wound, causing irritation and itching, the lesion persisting as a chronic sore until the onset of the cold weather. The following treatments are recommended by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. One per cent picric acid in glycerine. Chloroform, ether or iodoform applied to the wound every day. Astringent powders containing quinine keep the animal from biting the sores. Good results are reported from the use of plaster paris, 100 parts; alum, 20 parts; naphthalene, 10 parts, and quinine 10 parts. Abrasions caused by harness and other skin injuries should be protected from flies by the use of repellents such as oil of tar.

IN 100 A D CHINA MET DEPRESSION

Emergency Relief Measures Instituted During Chow Regime; Compare Well With Today

In recording the various depressions which have rocked the world, the oldest record is that of the depressions of China during the Chow dynasty in the first century A. D. A translation from the Chow Li, or book of Governmental Rites, gives illuminating light on the emergency measures, which were adopted to meet depression periods. These measures, unaltered by translation, seem in some respects quite equal to any legislation of modern days. The article appears in the Royal Bank letter.

The measures are:
One. The Distribution of Surplus Treasures.—The government will provide not only funds for the relief work, but will also open up all storages of accumulated grains and other necessities of life for direct distribution.

Two. The Lowering of Taxation.—This will relieve people from public burdens and thus enable them to be self-supporting. During the time of depression the land tax was usually halved, or the famine-stricken region totally exempted.

Three. The Mitigation of the Severity of Criminal Punishment.—This is because people are more easily driven to crime when in distress, and therefore they deserve special mercy.

Four. The Withholding of Labour Conscription.—In the ancient times all male citizens, excepting officials and scholars, were subject to government conscription for public works between the planting and the harvest seasons. This conscription would be withheld in times of depression, so that the people might work more profitably.

Five. The Lifting of Legal Prohibition Against Use of State Property.—According to Chow law, mountains, rivers, forests and mines were publicly owned and prohibition from private exploitation. This prohibition would be lifted and the people allowed to enjoy the products of state property.

Six. The Abandonment of Trade Restriction.—This would facilitate free transportation and quick exchange.

Seven. The Elimination of Social Ceremonials.—This was to eliminate unnecessary expense.

Eight. The Simplification of Funeral Rites.

Nine. The prohibition of public amusements.

Ten. An encouragement of simple and easy marriage, because marriages in old China were expensive and difficult.

Eleven. The holding of prayer service, in which the Emperor led the officials and people in prayer to the national Gods.

Twelve. A check on thieving and banditry. From the very beginning an effective check would prevent revolution.

These twelve items form the important measures of the Huang Cheng since the time of ancient China.

A Leicester coroner, speaking at a recent inquest on a man killed by a motor car, said: "There is an old saying, 'Walk and see the world' but nowadays we can say, 'Walk carelessly and see the next world'."

TAXATION NOW AND IN THOSE DAYS

Too Bad if Our Governments Took Precedent From History

According to a London journalist, the modern taxpayer has something to be thankful for. We the better off in some ways in the matter of taxes than they were a hundred or two hundred years ago in Europe. In 1695, for instance, there were taxes on bachelors, on widowers and those about to marry. The younger Pitt taxed hats, candles, hearths, windows, watches, hair powder, female servants, horses, christenings, deaths, births and burials. The brick-up windows in many old houses in London show how householders evaded the window tax. Similarly, the introduction of a tax on hair powder led to the introduction of short hair. Cromwell went so far as to tax plum-puddings. The Mansion House was built by money collected from persons who refused to act as sheriffs, then an enviable job.

Until eighty years ago there were heavy taxes on newspapers and advertisements. Every advertisement in France today is taxed. It was Robert Peel who introduced income tax—at 7d in the pound. Bachelors are taxed today in France, Germany, Italy and Jugo-Slavia. In France unmarried women over thirty are also taxed.—The Municipal World.

FRAZIER HUNT NOW AT EDEN VALLEY

Distinguished Ranch Owner Arrives at Western Ranch for Summer Sojourn

Mr. and Mrs. Frazier Hunt of New York and their son Bobby, have arrived at their Eden Valley ranch on the Highwood and will enjoy the experience of a belated springtime in the Rockies.

It is two years since Mr. Hunt has been "back West", and during those two years he has circled the globe, lingering in many of the storm centres and potential storm centres of this so-called civilized world. The articles, which have been a result of his observations and associations, have been read with great interest by everyone.

In an interview with the Calgary Herald this week, he gave it as his opinion that a European war is unlikely at the present time.

Mr. Hunt pointed out that all nations have learned that war does not pay and were also in dread of revolutions which might follow another war. Referring to the Japanese situation, he said that he was of the opinion that time would be the factor to defeat the Japanese programme. "While Russia wanted peace," he said, "the Russian bear stands as a vast shadow over the whole of the eastern situation."

That the Canadian cattle industry would also benefit directly by the prevailing mood in the United States was also expressed by the writer, who stated "There is every promise of a pronounced cut in tariffs between United States and Canada, particularly in respect to cattle." He said that the people in the United States realized that they had made a mistake in establishing such tariffs because the Canadian people provided their best market.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Gleichen business men report trade improved over last year at this time.

A big hockey meeting was held at Gleichen to elect officers for next season.

A girl from Edmonton visiting here on a farm noticed one of the boys at work in one of the fields. "What do you run that big roller over the field for?" she asked. "We are going to raise mashed potatoes there," he replied.

A customer sat down to a table in a smart restaurant and tied his napkin around his neck. The manager called a boy and said to him: "Try to make him understand as tactfully as possible that that's not done." Boy (seriously to customer): "Shave or haircut, sir?"

Father O'Brien had preached on "Married Life and Its Duties," and an old Irishwoman said to her friend as they came out, "Sure it's a fine sermon his reverence gave us this mornin'." "It was, indeed," the other woman replied, "an' it's me that's wishin' Oi knew as little about the matter as he does."

Weather during the past week has been ideal for operations on the farms throughout the Vulcan district. Seeding is practically completed except in a few isolated strips. The warmth of the sun has brought rapid growth to all plant life and the beautiful green everywhere is pleasant to look upon. Crop prospects in spite of the late seeding season are excellent.

Tom DeWitt and family left last week for Didsbury where they will in future make their residence. Mr. DeWitt was officially transferred from management of the Pool elevators in Vulcan, No. 1 and No. 2, to a like position in the new place of residence. Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt have resided in Vulcan for the past six years and will be missed from social and church circles by a host of friends who wish them well. capital levy more than once. In that respect capital levy bears a marked resemblance to capital punishment.

In passing sentence recently a judge is reported as declaring that in his opinion punishments should not be penal. Perhaps not, but it is going to be a nuisance to change all the dictionaries.

Every man has some use we are told. Gaston B. Means can be used as an indicator showing the lowest depths of human degradation.

Investigation reveals no combine in the tobacco trade. Prices are kept up by taxation.

What's the use in paying any action to what that consummate scoundrel Gaston B. Means says? Perjury would be only a trivial matter to so debased and despicable a creature.

They used to do it a hundred years ago and over—condemn a book and order it burned on the market place by the public hangman. In doing the same thing in Germany now Herr Hitler is reverting to medievalism.

Napoleon used a more summary method. He shot the publisher.

The whole is greater than any of its parts and therefore the man who is general manager of the whole of Canada should receive a larger salary than any man who is the general manager of any integral part, no matter how important. In the United States there are so-called captains of industry and finance who draw larger salaries than the president to whom they look for succor when they get into difficulty. The same is true in Canada to a less degree. These highly-paid executives should scorn to ask or accept assistance from men drawing smaller salaries.

Bernard Shaw is not the man he was by any means. He admits he is getting old, and it's not like Shaw to admit anything upon which the rest of us are agreed.

MARKETING HOGS WITHOUT PROFIT

Difference Between Profit and Loss, Matter of Intelligent Care

S. G. Freeborn, district swine grader of Calgary, is curious to learn why a part of Alberta that raises fine beef cattle has not as high a standard in hog production.

Looking over the stockyard products he has seen some excellent bacon type hogs commanding premium prices. But there are also too many inferior animals. "Ranching" hogs, "razorbacking" on stubble and around strawstacks, with the coarse undesirable product it furnishes is a handicap to all better intentioned hog producers in the way such hogs hammer down our market.

Some are lard type to start with and are poorly fed, a year's age on many of them; some of them rickety from straight grain feeding without even a cheap grain-saving, health-giving mineral mixture, brayed and damaged by rough handling.

Why delay castration till the hog is heavy shouldered and becoming coarse and thick in the skin and getting too fussy to feed for that very reason? Is it not easier, safer, and more economical from a growth and quality standpoint to turn the little pigs into barrows while still on the sow and a setback can be avoided?

FARMER CANNOT CEASE TO PRODUCE

To the man in the street, any attempts to increase production in these days of depressing world surpluses seem a waste of time, or even worse. He forgets, says Mr. L. H. Newman, the Dominion Cerealists, that the problem of the individual farmer differs vastly from that of the nation as a whole, in that the capacity of the farmer to carry on and pay his way, is measured in no small degree by the yields he realizes per acre. To the farmer, the acre is his unit of production. If his average yields per acre, whether converted into milk, mutton, or beef, or disposed of in their raw state are not sufficiently high to enable him to meet his obligations he must either succumb entirely or be forced to adopt a standard of living which removes him as an important factor in the problem of keeping the wheels of commerce moving.

CANADA IS LAND OF CHILDREN

Canada is a country of school children. The latest facts regarding education show that, in 1931, there were 2,642,742 enrolled in 32,637 educational institutions under 84,203 teachers. Nearly $200,000,000 was spent in that year. The standards of literacy reached a new record, with 92 per cent of all over five who can read and write. Canada has 352 Indian schools with an enrolment of 16,415. There are 322 colleges and schools with 38,000 pupils. Few countries accord greater educational opportunities than Canada, most of it in the public schools being free.

A tourist was enjoying the wonders of California as pointed out by a native. "What beautiful grapefruit!" he said, as they passed through a grove of citrus trees. "Oh, those lemons are a bit small, owing to a comparative bad season," explained the Californian. "And what are those enormous blossoms?" asked the tourist. "Just a patch of dandelions," said the Californian. Presently they reached the Sacramento river. "Ah," said the tourist, grasping the idea. "Somebody's radiator is leaking."

GENERAL NEWS

The cheery fellow met a friend at a dance. "Well, well, old man," he said happily, "so you're married at last! Allow me to congratulate you." He paused and then added with a sly smile: "I hear you have an excellent and accomplished wife." The newly wed nodded. "I have indeed," he replied. "Why, she's at home in music, she's at home in art, she's at home in books, she's at home everywhere except—" "Yes, except what," came the inquiry. "Except at home," the other dolefully replied.

Settling in court a back street controversy, the fine distinctions were explained by the defendant. "It was like this," she said. "She says to me, 'You're no lady,' she says, and I smile contemptuously. Then she says, 'You're an outrageous female,' she says, and I larfs scornful-like. Then she says, 'You're a woman,' she says, and I let's her 'ave the soapuds in her face. 'Ow'd you like to be a woman, sir?'"

A somewhat happier yarn is passed on to us by a local bank manager. It seems that a man met a friend coming out of a bank, all smiles. "Why all the joy?" he asked, and was told that a loan of $3,500 had just been successfully negotiated. "What did you put up as security?" the friend asked. "Oh I gave the bank $5000 in Victory bonds," was the reply. "Well, you gave them plenty of security. Why such satisfaction. 'Ah, but you don't know the joke. I have $5,000 more in Victory bonds at home that the bank doesn't know anything about."

The conversation took place at a small railway station in Galway. "Sure, Pat," said the first native of that western country, "it's down to Kilmarn O'Ve been, and O'm on me way back to Kilpatrick." "Ye don't say," returned the other. "It's me-self that's just been after bein' down to Kilmarn, and O' stop her a bit before goin' on to Kilmarn." The passing Frenchman shuddered. "What assassins!" gasped he. "Oh to be back in my beloved France."
